Short on space?
Here's how to
fashion a beautiful,
functional nursery
in a very small area.

Creating an appealing baby's room is one of the most fun things you'll do to prepare to bring your newborn home. But what if you're short on space? City and apartment dwellers often face this challenge, but there are easy ways to create a nursery even without a lot of room to spare. Los Angeles-based designers Michele Adams and Gia Russo (known as the design team MiGi) transformed an 8-by-10-foot area into this tranquil baby's room (with a cool, retro feel). Plus, they offer tips on how you can do it yourself, no matter how much—or little—space you have.
